BILLS

A Bill proposes to create a new law or amend an existing one. Members debate its content in the Assembly and in committee.

Stages of a Bill

All Bills introduced in the Assembly must go through the following stages to become law:

First Reading: The Bill is introduced and read for the first time. No debate occurs at this stage. Printed copies of the Bill are distributed for further consideration. The option exists to refer the Bill to a committee that will conduct public hearings on its content.

Second Reading: The Minister begins a debate of the Bill by outlining its purpose and its provisions. Other members join the debate by critiquing the principle of the Bill.

Committee Stage: The Bill is referred to a policy field committee or Committee of the Whole for a detailed examination of the Bill. Public hearings may be held before the Bill is examined clause by clause. Amendments may also be proposed before the Bill is reported back to the Assembly.

Third Reading: Members may debate the Bill one final time before voting on it.

Royal Assent: The Lieutenant Governor or his representative gives the Bill Royal Assent.

This appeal concerned an action ostensibly taken on behalf of numerous organic grain farmers for the recovery of damages alleged to have resulted from the introduction by the respondents of strains of genetically modified canola for use by farmers generally. The appellants' application which was, in fact, driven not by the appellants, who were nominal plaintiffs only, but by the Saskatchewan Organic Directorate and especially the Organic Agriculture Protection Fund, was dismissed at trial for failing to satisfy the requirements for certification as a class action. The issues on appeal were 1) Did the trial judge misapply s. 6(a) of the Class Actions Act: a) by adopting an excessively rigorous approach to the application of s. 6(a); or b) by concluding that the proceedings disclosed no cause of action except under the Environmental Protection Act, 2002 and The Environmental Assessment Act?; 2) Did the trial judge misapply s. 6(b) of The Class Actions Act?; and 3) Additional grounds based on ss. 6(c)(d) and (e) of the Act. HELD: 1. Appeal dismissed. There will be no order for costs in keeping with the provisions of s. 40 of The Class Actions Act. a) Thoroughness should not be confused with excessive rigour. The trial judge did not adopt an excessively rigorous approach. Section 6 of the Class Actions Act is essentially a screening mechanism that places an onus on the representative plaintiff to satisfy the judge that the pleadings disclose an apparently veritable cause of action on the basis of the facts as pleaded and the law that applies. b) Having noted that each of the causes of action was novel in some respects, the trial judge went on to consider each of them, beginning with the common law causes of action in negligence, nuisance and trespass. Applying the governing body of principle to each cause of action as pleaded, the judge concluded that the pleadings did not disclose a cause of action. The Court can find no material error in her reasons, nor could not stand because the information did not allege any offence for which they could be convicted. The bylaw does not define what is meant by the term animal husbandry nor uses the term. They were not breeding, raising or caring for farm animals but merely kept a sheep, not unlike a large dog, in their back yard as a pet for their children. The city did not charge them with a nuisance type of offence, for a breach of public health regulations nor a breach of the animal control bylaw. It charged them with a zoning violation. Many activities conducted by veterinarians in the city or at the university would violate the bylaw. The role of the court is to interpret a bylaw in a purposive manner, not to make law by rewriting it. No evidence was adduced at trial as to what kinds of animals are considered by the community to be acceptable as pets in the city. (ii) Even if the information were amended to delete reference to animal husbandry, it was still unclear whether keeping one small sheep was an offence under the Act and the bylaw. (iii) It was clear they were not conducting any enterprise. Some findings of material facts by the bylaw court justice were not supported by the evidence.
